

IAD Announces First Accredited Companies in National Security Cyber Assistance Program (NSCAP)

The NSA/IAD announces effective May 27, 2014, as a result of the National Security Cyber Assistance Program (NSCAP) Pilot, seven companies have been granted Cyber Incident Response Assistance (CIRA) Accreditation.

- Booz Allen Hamilton, Inc.
- CrowdStrike Services, Inc.
- FireEye, Inc.
- Lockheed Martin Information Systems & Global Solutions
- Maddrix, LLC
- Mandiant, a FireEye Company*
- Verizon

*FireEye, Inc. recently acquired Mandiant. During the NSCAP Pilot, FireEye, Inc. and Mandiant independently applied for and received CIRA accreditation.

This accreditation will expire on May 26, 2015. To become accredited, a company must undergo a positive assessment in 21 critical focus areas of Cyber Incident Response Assistance (CIRA) derived from Industry and Government best practices.

Additional information about the NSA/IAD NSCAP Program is available at:

http://www.nsa.gov/ia/programs/cyber_assistance_program/index.shtml